Conferencing is the most formal of the Restorative Practices and is an in-depth, time-intensive practice for serious situations.

It is strongly recommended that participants attend Restorative Practices for Educators and used these skills before attending this training.

IN THIS 2-DAY TRAINING, YOU'LL ENGAGE IN HANDS-ON LEARNING TO:

- Understand the purpose of Formal Conferences and how they differ from problem-solving circles.
- Practice facilitating conferences through multiple school-based role plays.
- Reflect on how restorative conferences can address harm and serve as an alternative to suspension.

This session follows the IIRP framework

FORMAL CONFERENCING IS DESIGNED FOR:

Educators or partners that handle the most serious situations in schools/community such as:

- Administrators
- Dean of Students
- Student Services
- School Resource Officers
- Social Service personnel and other agencies that support youth

"The structure of the whole training was excellent! Learning by doing is the way I learn best!"
